Four Boy Scouts lost in the woods were so comfortable one asked his rescuers to mark the trail out and he would follow in the morning.

"They were all well-trained, well-skilled and were as snug as bugs in a rug," said Don Bower, a member of the search team in nearby Waverly, N.S.

Mr. Bower said that when the four 12-year-olds were found early Sunday, they had to be persuaded to pack up their sophisticated camp, leave the make-shift lean-to they were sleeping in and go home.

The boys were on an exercise Saturday which included compass and map reading when they became lost. They had been instructed to stay put in such situations.
